Casa Duries .- We have heard that it is pr posed by some of the friends of Home Industry o give up that part of the Compromise Lax tion: A imports $100,000 worth of goods, as pays a duty say of 25 per cent. For this he give his bond for $25,000, at an advance of six months The goods he sends to auction, and sells at 60 or 90 days' credit-viz. for the auctioneer's notegood of course, which he procures to be discount ed. He then has $25,000, with a small deduction of commissions and interest, to repeat the operation of importing. The capital of our Banks, or American capital, is drawn off to effect the impor tation of foreign goods. This can be extended. and it has been extended under the former system of credits, until an amount equal to the capital a all the Banks in the city of New-York was in th hands of a few importers. Single importe might be named who had the address to pass of three bonds to an amount of over half a million dollars. It has led to the wildest speculations and the most wide-sprend bankruptcies. It is a mean by which vast amounts may be realized, even after the importer becomes bankrupt. He has only to procure a bondman, and this he may ordinarily dethrough the moneyed influence always at his conmand. He obtains an immense power, by the ready money he controls, over moneyed institution as well as individuals, sustaining himself in the gambling operation until necessity compels him : yield, and a commercial crash follows to the las with regular business, giving a stimulus to impor tations beyond the natural demand, drawing capi tal from its wholesome employment in Home In dustry, and applying it to strengthen foreign competition against that Industry. It eventually diminishes revenue because it deranges our Internal Industry, and by that means contracts the ability of the country to pay for foreign goods.

The Government, moreover, will be subjected to losses, which, in the course of a few years, will amount to a large sum, beside continued expend, tures in vexatious law-suits against the sureties which are brought on by the frequent failures pro duced by this unnatural trade. The sums are gen wrally large for which they have been induced to give their bonds, and they usually resist paymer to the last. Why should we virtually loan the money of the Government (for in all other coun tries the duties are cash in the Treasury) to en courage buying of foreign nations when we are already indebted to them bundreds of millions ; dollars! We hope this most wholesome part the Compromise Act will be adhered to. The true friends of Industry soust make a decider stand and never yield the point; for it is, in every point of view, one of the most important point involved in the revision of the Tariff.
